Jolly Boys Visit to Gloucester 12th April 2007

It appears there have been many changes in the availability of Real Ale on offer in some Gloucester pubs since our last trip here just 6 years ago. From the pubs visited then, only two still feature in the Good Beer Guide; the Regal which is a Wetherspoon, and England's Glory, which I have decided to exclude on this occasion as it would take us away from other interesting 'new' pubs.

For those gents requiring lunch somewhere en route may I suggest the Dick Whittington? On the day of my recce it wasn't too crowded, unlike the Fountain which had little seating room available. The landlady told me that if I give her a ring after everybody has arrived and let her know the number attending, that she will reserve us an area at which to sit. Also, if anybody interested in eating there will let me know their choice from either the regular or "two for a tenner" menu, (extract attached, full details available on the day) I could possibly phone through an advance order.

(I can confirm that I am not on commission - J.D.)
